

9.	Important biometallic alloys: Ti-based, stainless steels, Co-Cr-Mo alloys	19-21
10.	Bioinert, Bioactive and bioresorbable ceramics	22-24
11.	Processing and properties of different bioceramic materials with emphasize on hydroxyapatite	25-27
12.	Synthesis of biocompatible coatings on structural implant materials	28-29
13.	Plasma spraying of carbon nanotube reinforced hydroxyapatite on Ti-6Al-4V substrate; in-vitro cytocompatibility	30-32
14.	Microstructure and properties of glass-ceramics	33-34
15.	Biodegradable polymers	35-37
16.	Design concept of developing new materials for bio-implant applications	38-40

References:

1. Biomaterials Science: An introduction to Materials in Medicine, Edited by Ratner, Hoffman, Schoet and Lemons, Second Edition: Elsevier Academic Press, 2004.
2. Comprehensive structural integrity, Vol.9: Bioengineering Editors: Mithe, Ritchie and Karhalo, Elsevier Academic Press, 2003.